

Spring is here!

Wedding season is almost upon here in the beautiful Berkshires. Brides from all over the Continental US, who have decided to celebrate in New England. I am so privileged to be apart of their special day. I truly love my job.

The best of the year is yet to come. Sunny days and spring flowers, warm sunsets and blue skies. The spring and summer are my favorite!

Tips for a Successful Wedding Trial:

1. Pictures, pictures, pictures! Nothing truly conveys what you like or dislike better than a photo. Thankfully, with sites like Pinterest, we can communicate with images when sometimes the right words escape us.
2. Bring along any accessories. Would you like to have your grandmother's antique brooch in your hair? Test out the look and the practicality of the piece.
3. Schedule the trial about 3 months in advance. If you're growing out your hair for the big day, you will have a more realistic view of what kind of length you'll have for the wedding.
4. Wash and dry your hair so your stylist can get right to work. If you have to have your hair blown out, then curled to style, you are tacking on additional time, which can mean additional money.

Have you met my wonderful friend and colleague? Her name is Tricia McCormack and she is a very talented photographer that specializes in beautiful Berkshire weddings. Here's a link to her website: www.triciamccormack.com
